QUALITY CARE & PATIENT SAFETY

PROCEDURE

- ❖ A systematic and organized approach is intended towards optimizing care for the patients it serves and avoiding harm. It embraces a culture of safety, quality, and transparency.
- ❖ By improving the 'process', an organization reduces the chances associated with failure and redundancy. The improved healthcare system is more on data-driven science rather than anecdote-driven.
- ❖ The Efficiency of managerial and clinical processes leaves transition space for doctors and staff to provide responsive, respectful, and value-based care to a patient.
- ❖ Recognize and solve the problems even before they occur.
- ❖ Providing services based on scientific knowledge to all who could benefit and refraining from providing services to those not likely to benefit (avoiding underuse and misuse, respectively).
- ❖ Providing care that is respectful of and responsive to individual patient preferences, needs, and values and ensuring that patient values guide all clinical decisions.
- ❖ Reducing waits and sometimes harmful delays for both those who receive and those who give care.
- ❖ Providing care that does not vary in quality because of personal characteristics such as gender, ethnicity, geographic location, and socio economic status.

INFECTION PREVENTION AND CONTROL PRACTICES

Standard Precautions are the minimum infection prevention practices that apply to all patient care, regardless of the suspected or confirmed infection status of the patient

1. Hand hygiene: Hand hygiene is the most important measure to prevent the spread of infections among patients. For preventing the spread of infection, education and training programs should thoroughly address indications and techniques for hand hygiene practices
2. Use of personal protective equipment (e.g., gloves, masks, eyewear):

Use of gloves in situations involving possible contact with blood or body fluids, mucous membranes, non-intact skin (e.g., exposed skin that is chapped, abraded, or with dermatitis)

3. Respiratory hygiene/cough etiquette: Respiratory hygiene/cough etiquette infection prevention measures are designed to limit the transmission of respiratory pathogens spread by droplet or airborne routes.
4. Sharps safety: All used disposable syringes and needles and other sharp items should be placed in appropriate puncture-resistant containers located close to the area where they are used. Sharps containers should be disposed of according to state and local regulated medical waste rules.
5. Safe injection practices: Safe injection practices are intended to prevent the transmission of infectious diseases between one patient and another.

To control infection:

- I. prepare injections using an aseptic technique in a clean area.
Do not use needles or syringes* for more than one patient (this includes manufactured prefilled syringes and other devices such as insulin pens).
- III. Medication containers (single and multidose vials, ampoules, and - bags) are entered with a new needle and new syringe, even when obtaining additional doses for the same patient.

- IV. Do not use single-dose (single-use) medication vials, ampules, and bags or bottles of intravenous solution for more than one patient.
  - V. Do not combine the leftover contents of single-use vials for later use.

6. Sterile instruments and devices :

- I. Critical items, such as surgical instruments and periodontal scalers, are those used to penetrate soft tissue or bone. They have the greatest risk of transmitting infection and should always be sterilized using heat.
- II. sterile instruments and supplies should be stored in covered or closed cabinets. Wrapped packages of sterilized instruments should be inspected before opening and use to ensure the packaging material has not been compromised (e.g., wet, torn, punctured) during storage. The contents of any compromised packs should be reprocessed (i.e., cleaned, packaged, and heat-sterilized again) before use on a patient.

- Before handling an invasive device.
- after touching blood, body fluids, secretions, excretion, non-intact skin and contaminated items, even if gloves are worn.
- During patient care, when moving from a contaminated to a clean body site of the patient.
- After contact with inanimate objectives in the immediate vicinity of the patients.

2) Gloves

- Wear when touching blood, body fluid, secretions, excretion, mucus membranes and non-intact skin.
- Change between tasks and procedure on the same patient after contact with potentially infectious material.
- Remove after use, before touching non-contaminated items and surfaces, and before going to another patient. Perform hand hygiene immediately after removal.

3) Facial protection (eye, nose and mouth)

- Wear a Surgical or procedure mask and eye protection (face shield, goggles) to protect mucous membranes of the eyes, nose and mouth during activities that are likely to generate splashes or sprays of blood, body fluids, secretions and excretions.

DEPARTMENT OF SEROLOGY / IMMUNOLOGY
Test Name	Result	Unit	Biological Ref. Range	Method

HEPATITIS B SURFACE ANTIBODY (ANTI -HBS) ( ELISA)
Sample Type : SERUM
Hepatitis B Surface Antibody	15.32 (Positive)	mIU/ml	< 10 Negative > 10 Positive	ELISA

COMMENT:
The presence of antibody to hepatitis B surface antigen (anti-Hbs) is used to determine immune status to HBV or disease progression in individuals infected with HBV. An increase in anti-HBs level, together with a loss of detectable circulating hepatitis B Surface antigen (HBsAg), denotes convalescence in hepatitis B infections. Furthermore, anti-HBs levels can be measured to determine if vaccination is needed or , following a vaccination regimen to determine if protective immunity has been achieved.

LIMITATION:
If the Anti-HBs results are inconsistent with clinical evidence, additional testing is suggested to confirm the result for diagnostic purposes, results should be used in conjunction with patient history and other hepatitis markers for diagnosis of acute and chronic infections.
